First Great Novel of 1909. Ready To-Day

THE MISSIONER

The Story of a Man of High Ideals

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

THE MISSIONER

Another characteristic Oppenheim hero, yet strongly individual—a man of the noblest ideals and with a fascinating tinge of mystery.

By OPPENHEIM

who gives the readers of our day what Wilkie Collins—and Dumas—gave those of another generation.

This new story, that opens the season of 1909 so felicitously, can be reckoned upon to swell still more the list of this popular author's admirers. No one does, no one can, deny to Mr. Oppenheim an inexhaustible ability, a clever dexterity, a remarkable ingenuity in the conception and management of plot. Nor will the increasing charm of his literary style be a fact unnoted by those who require more than adventure and sentiment in their reading. Particularly is this apparent in "THE MISSIONER"—a story in which action, mystery, bright dialogue, clear-cut characters, and vivid glimpses of English and Parisian life combine to make it, as those who read it in serial form avow, the best novel Mr. Oppenheim has yet written.

Kincaid's Battery

By GEORGE W. CABLE

This is a dramatic tale, tender and stirring by turns, with the Southern beauties and brave boys quite real enough to make one smell roses and gun-powder, dream of crinolines, cannon, passionate partisan songs, terrific combats, dim midnight fields, all the vivid, terrible, haunting, fascinating pageant of love in that bygone time."—Chicago Record-Herald.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY have just ready a little book by Swami Paramananda, entitled "Vedanta in Practice," a manual of Buddhistic devotion.

THE LAMB PUBLISHING COMPANY, 225 Fifth Avenue, New York City, announce that they have made arrangements for the exclusive rights of sale on all the trade publications manufactured by The Werner Company.

DODD, MEAD & CO. have nearly ready "The Pulse of Life," a new novel by Mrs. Belloc Lowndes, author of "Barbara Rebell." The story has for its setting London and the adjacent country villages. The action takes place among the old families of the Catholic nobility as they are found to-day.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will bring out shortly in their English Classics, issued under the general editorship of Professor Frederick H. Sykes, of the New York Teachers' College, the following volumes: Shakespeare's "Julius Cæsar," edited by Professor F. H. Sykes; Browning's "Shorter Poems," edited by Professor John W. Cunliffe, University of Wisconsin, and Scott's "Lady of the Lake," edited by Ralph H. Bowles, formerly of the Phillips-Exeter Academy. They have just ready a new edition of George W. Cable's new story, "Kincaid's Battery;" the eighth edition of "Peter," F. Hopkinson Smith's masterpiece, and the sixth edition of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine."

JOHN LANE COMPANY have brought out this week the volume on "Vincenzo Foppa of Bresica, Founder of the Lombard School," by Constance Jocelyn Ffoulkes and Monsignor Rodolfo Maiocchi, D.D., fully noticed in our issue for December 26; a biography of Gilbert K. Chesterton, with portraits; also, a volume of poems by Arthur Christopher Benson. They have also just ready a new edition of the "Poems of Ernest Dowson." The fact that Dowson was the prototype of Mrs. Atherton's hero in "The Gorgeous Isle," as recently told by the novelist herself, has excited a considerable interest in the work of this poet. The volume contains all of Dowson's poems, a memoir by Arthur Symonds, a portrait by Rothenstein, and illustrations by Aubrey Beardsley.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY, about the middle of January, will publish, in addition to a short novel by Barr Moses, entitled "Dreaming River," a love idyll of the Minnesota prairie, and "Lorimer of the Northwest," a new stirring Canadian story by Harold Bindloss, noticed in our issue for January 2, a timely little volume on "New Ideals in Healing," by Ray Stannard Baker, which contains the first short account of the "Emmanuel Movement," and a comprehensive treatment of the various allied movements, religious and medical, which are taking on such a large significance; "Good Health and How We Won It," by Upton Sinclair and Michael Williams—a new kind of health book, with twelve full-page half-tones; "The Table Talk of Abraham Lincoln," by William O. Stoddard, which is unique among the books of the Lincoln centenary, being intimate, personal and accurate, as it is by Lincoln's private secretary, who saw him constantly; "The New York Cake Book," a book of delicious recipes by a famous New York chef; "Auction Bridge," by R. F. Foster, which contains the authorized rules of this game which is so rapidly supplanting bridge; a revised and enlarged edition of Foster's "Hoyle," so long a standard, under the name of "Foster's Complete Hoyle;" also, "Van Dyck" and "Da Vinci" in the Masterpieces in Color series. They have prepared upwards of fifty Art Valentines which dealers will do well to inspect before making up their orders for this line of goods.

In the second part I have taken up the stories of the separate churches." Madách, Imre. The tragedy of man: dramatic poem; tr. from the original Hungarian by W. N. Loew. N. Y., Arcadia Press, [1909.] 224 p. D. cl., *$1.50 net, boxed.

Imre Madách was born on the 21st of January, 1821, in Hungary, the scion of an ancient, noble Magyar family. He died in October, 1864. "The tragedy of man," his masterpiece, has been successfully played for more than a quarter of a century at Budapest and Vienna. The translator describes the work as "a poem of the type of Goethe's 'Faust' and Byron's 'Cain.'" It is not one man, nor even a group of men, that the poet has chosen as the subject of his theme, but, boldly enough, the whole of mankind. His hero is Adam, the eternal type of humanity. The work displays the whole history of man, not merely his past, but his present, and even his future."

 A mysterious murder supposed to have taken place in a fashionable New York gambling house, is the central incident. Lawrence Challoner, who has spent the best years of his married life wasting his wife's fortune, is arrested as the murderer. His trial follows, the author, who is a New York lawyer, bringing into play all he knows about "the machine," graft, and dishonest politics, and showing their influence upon Challoner's fate. The plot is too complicated to follow, but it is worked out with much ingenuity. A good woman's love and devotion helps to redeem Challoner, while another good woman, innocently, almost drives to destruction a good man.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 9, 1909.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

AMERICAN BOOK AUCTION SALES, 1907-1908.

It was expected, as dispersal through the auction room is one of the easiest and quickest methods of realizing upon a library, that the business depression, which was so general throughout the country during the auction season of 1907-1908, would have shown an increase in the number of books offered for sale and a corresponding decrease in price. This is, however, according to Mr. Livingston, in "The American Book Prices Current" for 1907-1908,* not markedly the case. The number of lots included in the volume for 1908, the fourteenth of the series, is almost exactly the same as in the 1907 volume, and prices have, generally considered, held up very satisfactorily, especially in the case of the rarer items.

It is not easy, as Mr. Livingston points out, to generalize upon the season's business as a whole. Few great libraries or collections were dispersed, and the larger number of the catalogues have, as usual, been made up of smaller consignments. The collection of George M. Williamson, sold by the Anderson Auction Company, on January 30 and 31, was perhaps the most important library of collector's books disposed of during the year. Mr. Williamson had been collecting first editions of English and American authors for more than twenty-five years and within its limits his library was one of the notable collections in the country. He early appreciated the importance of "association" copies, and many of his books were presentation copies or contained the author's autograph. The collection of first editions of Robert Louis Stevenson was the finest and most complete, without much doubt, ever brought together, and the same statement might be made of the works of Lewis Carroll, (Charles L. Dodgson.) The Stevenson set, begun by Charles B. Foote, was retained by him when he sold his library in 1894-95, and additions were made to it from time to time until his death, when Mr. Williamson purchased it entire and added it to his own then important collection, disposing of the duplicates. Further additions were afterwards made to it from the collection of Alfred J. Morgan and from other sources. Indeed, during the few years following Stevenson's death, when his books were being most sought after, the most interesting items which came upon the market were secured by one of those three collectors — Foote, Morgan or Williamson. A descriptive catalogue of the Williamson set of Stevenson was printed at the Marion Press in 1901. The first editions of Lewis Carroll were in large part the author's own copies and included, besides an unusual series of his leaflets and several trial forms of title-pages and bindings, a copy of the rare first edition with the title-page, dated 1865, of "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland." Mr. Williamson was one of the first American collectors to appreciate the importance of having his "Pickwick" in the correct earliest state. He had not achieved absolute perfection, but the set was, according to Mr. Livingston, probably the finest ever offered in an American auction room, and brought $755. Washington's copy of "Don Quixote," four vols., 1786, with Washington's autograph in each of the four volumes, and his bookplate in three volumes, brought $1050, the highest price of the sale.

*LIVINGSTON, Luther S., comp. C. F. Libbie & Company's sale of November 25, 26 and 27, 1907, including the library of Matthew A. Stickney, was principally Americana, being especially rich in early New England almanacs, Connecticut and Massachusetts election sermons, long series of New England newspapers, and local histories and genealogies. Included, though it does not find a place in the present record, was a genuine impression of Paul Revere's engraving, a "Westerly View of the Colledges in Cambridge, New England," which brought $700.

The library of the late Robert N. Sayre, including many important books, was offered in three sales, by Mr. Henkels, in Philadelphia, on November 6 and 8, and December 12 and 13, 1907, and January 28 and 31, 1908. A set of the famous original folio edition of Audubon's "Birds of America," an exceptionally fine copy, the plates being loose, with full margins, never having been bound, and the text having a presentation inscription in the author's autograph, brought $3200. This set was, it is reported, "bought in" by the Sayre estate. It is the highest price reported for a single lot during the season.

The collections of William H. Buckler, John D. Elwell, Bowen Whiting Pierson, Preston A. Perry, Lewis H. Brittin, Charles E. Pyser, Samuel W. Pennypacker (Parts v and vi), and Horace E. Hayden, all included important books. The most notable sales of autographs were those of Joshua I. Cohen and Henry Goldsmith, though many miscellaneous collections of autographs were held during the season.

Pamphlets on American railroads, American song books, books and pamphlets on Christian Science, by Mary B. G. Eddy and others, and books on the buccaneers and pirates, were features of several of the season's sales and seem to indicate new lines of collecting. Several nearly complete sets of the publications of the Bibliophile Society were offered and values seem to be on the increase. Books containing colored sporting prints were offered more frequently than usual in American auction rooms and good prices were secured for volumes in collector's edition. The fact that the present volume includes a far greater number of old Bibles than generally found in the preceding one, does not, we believe, indicate any revival in the collecting of editions of the Scriptures.

The 12,700 lots included in the present volume were selected from 169 catalogues, representing 351 sessions held in 275 days and aggregating about 116,000 lots.

THE STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE ANNUAL MEETING.

THE annual meeting of the Stationers' Board of Trade was held on Tuesday afternoon, January 5, at the rooms of the Board, 97 Nassau Street, New York City. Henry C. Bainbridge, the president, called the meeting to order at 3:30. Owing to the bad weather there were present only thirty-nine members, represented in person or by proxy. After the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting, the president presented the following address.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

This is the thirty-fourth annual meeting of this organization, and we can congratulate ourselves that your organization never in its history was in as strong, healthy and active condition as it is to-day.

We have no debts beyond current bills, our reserve fund is intact and we have a larger reserve fund than ever before. Business during parts of the last fifteen to eighteen months has been depressed, the number of failures increased somewhat and a larger number of claims were sent to this office for collection, with the result that the income of our Board has increased and we have had a profitable year, illustrating that when our private business is less prosperous the business of this Board is more prosperous. Unfortunately we cannot pay to our members a dividend to make up these losses.

The treasurer's report for the year ending November 30, 1908, shows a balance of $5748.44, an increase of $1162.74 in our surplus over last year, and when you take into consideration that we rebated each member $5 on quarterly dues, making the annual dues for the past year $75, thus lessening our income $575, this is a splendid showing and most creditable to our secretary.

The Information Department shows that it has been used to a greater extent than last year, having furnished 1218 more reports to members, and made 566 more inquiries for information this year. We have furnished various members 476 excess reports over the limit of 200 per year.

The Collection Department shows a large increase of business. In this department we have received 695 more claims for collection, aggregating in amount $42,584.28 in excess of the previous year. We have collected through the office and caused to be paid direct to members as the result of notice from the office and attorney, $17,853.86 in excess of the amount collected last year; 433 more claims have been collected through the office by attorneys or paid direct to members; 1032 more claims were sent to attorneys this year; 214 more claims, exceeding $15,545.78, those received last year, were settled direct; 152 more claims were settled through the office, and 261 more drafts have been received for collection over last year.

We would again call attention to members who have not used them, to our demand notices for collecting claims. These we sell to members only, for 40 cents per hundred, and members can use them in endeavoring to collect their claims direct, and when successful they do not have to pay a collection fee to the Board. Those who have used this method quite extensively find it a very desirable and inexpensive one for collecting past due claims. Kindly give it a trial.

The draft system we cannot speak of too highly, and we trust that those who have used it will continue to do so and others will give it a trial, so it can demonstrate its efficiency as a collection medium at a very small expense when same is paid to bank.

As to the efficiency of the Collection Department and what benefits may be derived by the members who make use of it, we refer to the figures showing what it has accomplished for the past year.

The Bankruptcy Department shows that it has been of great assistance to members in realizing upon their claims, as there has been paid this department $42,391.46, being $14,113.08 in excess of the amount paid to creditors last year; 2943 more letters have been received and 3031 more written than last year. We trust that members will not fail to make use of this department as well as the Collection Department when the opportunity presents itself, for the more claims we receive in bankruptcy and failure cases, the more apt we are to accomplish good results. Particularly so in bankruptcy cases, when we can control matters by electing a desirable trustee in the interest of the creditors.

Our secretary has had large experience in handling bankruptcy, failure and adjustment cases, and when it is necessary for him in the interests of creditors to investigate the matter personally by proceeding to the locality where the failure has taken place, he is ready at all times to immediately proceed to same for the purpose of investigating the failure and ascertaining the best action to take in the premises.

Through the Collection and Bankruptcy Departments there has been collected and disbursed $115,181.89, and there was also paid direct to members $74,613.60, making a total paid of $189,795.49. The total collected for members during the year 1907 was $157,513.02, which shows that $32,282.47 more has been collected this year.

During the year death has removed from our midst Daniel C. Heath, president of D. C. Heath & Company; Charles F. Chichester, treasurer of The Century Company; John Murray Brown, senior member of the firm of Little, Brown & Company; Charles K. Wilmer, secretary of the American News Company; George A. Raisbeck, president of Philip Hake Manufacturing Company; Frank Squier, of the firm of Perkins & Squier, a former president and trustee of this Board; Wilhelm J. D. Keuffel, president of Keuffel & Esser Company, and a former trustee of this Board, and E. F. C. Young, president of the Joseph Dixon Crucible Company.

The books and accounts have been examined by our accountant, Frank Broaker, and found correct.

The fourth annual convention of the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers was held in the city of Boston in July last. This Board was represented by twenty-three delegates, including your president. The details of the meeting you have read in the trade press.

Your Dinner Committee have selected March 8 as the date for our Annual Dinner, and the Waldorf-Astoria the place. The able committee composed of Robert Ansley, Arthur P. Jackson, Frederick P. Seymour and Harry G. Kiggins is a guarantee that the affair will be well managed, and up to the usual standard of excellence. All conditions are favorable for a large turnout and a good time. The Presidential election is settled to the entire satisfaction of everybody, without regard to how they voted. We know that good times are with us again, and it is fitting that we should celebrate on March 8.

In conclusion, I want to thank my fellows on the Board, the office force, and the members for all they have done to make the duties of the president an honor and a pleasure. The union of purpose which has dominated the meetings of our Board of Trustees is responsible for much of the good work accomplished.

HENRY C. BAINBRIDGE, President.

EARLY SOUTH AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS.

GEORGE PARKER WINSHIP, librarian of the John Carter Brown Library, Providence, R. I., has reprinted 150 copies of his paper on "Early South American Newspapers," from the Proceedings of the American Antiquarian Society for October, 1908. Mr. Winship traces the earliest news publication of which we know, printed in South America, to the information given regarding the capture of the English freebooter, Richard Hawkins, and his ship, The Dainty, off the Peruvian coast in 1594, ten years after the printing press began its work at Lima. It was not until 1620 and 1621, however, that the publication of occasional news-sheets was begun by Jeronimo de Contreras, the founder of a printing press from which was issued most of the published South American news of the next hundred years. Mr. Winship gives the titles of sixty news sheets printed at Lima, Peru, from 1621-1767, as recorded in J. T. Medina's "La Imprenta en Lima," (Santiago de Chile, 1904.) He also presents facsimiles of the front pages of two different issues of the Gazeta de Lima—one for December, 1743, and the other for September, 1745.

"RARE BOOK" SWINDLER GUILTY.

SAMUEL T. WARFIELD, according to the Chicago Inter-Ocean, was found guilty in Judge McSurely's Criminal Court in Chicago, on January 2, of alleged defrauding Mrs. James E. Patten, wife of a prominent Board of Trade operator, out of $22,700 by means of a "rare book" deal. W. N. Cooper, who was tried with Warfield, was found not guilty. Warfield was sentenced to three years in prison and to pay a fine of $1000. His attorneys are moving for an appeal from the sentence.

Warfield and Cooper, with John M. McFarland, who turned State's evidence, and was the chief witness for the prosecution, were alleged to have obtained Mrs. Patten's signature to contracts for editions de luxe of the works of Dickens, Scott, Thackeray, Balzac and others, with the verbal understanding with McFarland that she was not to buy them, but merely to hold them so that McFarland could dispose of them to another purchaser at a profit. Mrs. Patten had known McFarland favorably and signed her name as a favor to the young man.

The supposed purchaser never developed and Mrs. Patten was occasionally called upon to furnish McFarland with expense money to enable him, as she supposed, to find another buyer. Eventually she was compelled to take the books herself. Then she revealed the whole transaction to Mr. Patten, and he declared it a fraud. McFarland was arrested in Toronto. His testimony in the present case gained him immunity. Whether he will be tried later on some other charge in connection with the swindle has not been announced. A number of prominent people have been named as victims of these transactions, the amounts they paid having been estimated as ranging from $10,000 to $44,000 in the individual cases.

BEST-SELLING BOOKS IN ENGLAND DURING DECEMBER.

"DECEMBER as a publishing month," according to the London Book Monthly, "is scarcely worth speaking about nowadays. The new book which is not out before December has small chance of doing well. It runs against the tide of the Christmas trade and is swept aside by that tide.

"Of December, 1908, in particular, there is not much to report, because, apart from the publishing of books, the selling of them to the public has not been so brisk as usual. The whys and wherefores of that form another story—at the moment a mere mention of the fact is enough. Just towards Christmas everybody, one hopes, thinks of buying a book or two, but this spurt at the end of day is never sufficient to make a satisfactory bookselling winter.

"Now, if—! Ah, that little word! Why, of December publications, 'If,' by the authors of 'Wisdom While You Wait,' has no doubt sold best. Only a little one, of course, yet merry, bright and cheerful to read in our London Christmas weather. There is no use in trying to name other 'best sellers' issued in December, but of its fiction here are four stories worth looking at:

"The Web of Time, by R. E. Knowles. Oliphant, Anderson.

"The Wounds of a Friend, by Dora G. McChesney. Smith, Elder.

"I Came and Saw, by D. Blackburn. Alston Rivers.

"A Scout's Story, by Owen Vaughan. Duckworth.

"Even in dull December we get memoirs, biographies and autobiographies, and an effort may be made at a list in that direction:

"The Letters of a Noble Woman, edited by Margaret F. Young. Allen. The letters are those of Mrs. La Touche, the mother of Rose La Touche, who was the romance of John Ruskin's life.

"Anne Seymour Damer, by Percy Noble. Kegan Paul. Good gossip about an English woman of quality.

"The Life of Colonel Fred Burnaby, by Thomas Wright. Everett. The story of an adventurous Englishman told rather unromantically.

"Dr. Jameson, by G. S. Fort. Hurst & Blackett. A well-informed biography of 'Dr. Jim.'

"The Life of Sir Isaac Pitman, by A. Baker. Pitman & Sons. A record of the inventor of phonography."

OBITUARY NOTES.

HENRY CHAPMAN WATSON, editor of Dun's Review, died on January 6, at his home in Englewood, N. J. Mr. Watson was born December 6, 1870, in Port Chester, N. Y. He was the writer of "Money and Business," editorials printed in the New York Tribune each Monday morning. He was compiler of "Dun's Index Number," measuring the cost of living, for which a silver medal was awarded in the Department of Sociology at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904, and "Dun's Analysis of Commercial Failures"—both accepted as the standard records on these subjects. He also compiled many statistics for the United States government.

DR. JAMES P. GORDY, a well-known educator and member of the faculty of the New York University, took his life on December 31 in his apartments in New York City. Dr. Gordy was born near Salisbury, Md., in 1851. He studied at Leipzig and at Western University of Pennsylvania. He was Professor of Education at the Ohio University from 1886-1896 and at the Ohio State University from 1896 to 1901, when he became Professor of the History of Education and American History at the New York University. Dr. Gordy was the author of a "History of Political Parties in the United States," which was to be in four volumes but of which only two have been brought out; a text-book on psychology, a volume on "The Growth and Development of the Normal School Idea in the United States," etc. Dr. Gordy was also known as a translator, his most popular work in this direction being a translation of Kuno Fischer's "Descartes."

MARY EVELYN MOORE DAVIS, affectionately known throughout the South as "Molly Moore Davis," died on January 1 at her home in the old French quarter of New Orleans, where her husband, Major Thomas E. Davis, is the editor of the New Orleans Picayune. She was fifty-seven years old. She was not yet sixteen when she published her first volume of verses, "Minding the Gap, and Other Poems," and later a series of sketches called "In War Times at La Rose Blanche." It was soon after her marriage, in 1874, that she made her home in the old New Orleans mansion. Mrs. Davis had written many other poems, stories and sketches, published in the leading magazines. Several of her best stories are collected in a volume entitled "An Elephant's Tracks, and Other Stories." Her first novel, "Under the Man-Fig," written in 1895, met with so favorable a reception that she followed it, in 1899, with "The Wire Cutters." Her latest work, "The Moons of Balblanca," was published last September.

SAMUEL HUEBSCH, an uncle of B. W. Huebsch, for some years a printer, and more recently a publisher in a modest way in New York City, died suddenly on January 2 at his home, 204 E. Twenty-first Street. Mr. Huebsch was born in Hungary, in 1847, and came to this country in 1880, settling in New York City, where he opened up a small printing shop. As a young man Mr. Huebsch studied medicine, but his loves were literature, philosophy and philology. In philosophy he was an intelligent student of the great systems, and he devoted much time to the study of the history of religion. It was philology, however, that fascinated him. He had a working acquaintance with seven or eight languages, to say nothing of his mastery of Latin and Greek, Hebrew and other Oriental languages. At the time of the ascendancy of Volapük he threw himself into the movement with fervor, though at no time was he a fanatical believer in it. It was intellectual gymnastics to him. He wrote a grammar in the new language, as well as translated the Proverbs of Solomon, and some pamphlets of then current interest, all of which were published. A few years ago Mr. Huebsch retired from business in order to devote his entire time to his studies. Though never a part of it the business of B. W. Huebsch practically grew out of his uncle's establishment, and in that sense is a continuation of his beginnings.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY, on January 4, conferred the degree of LL.D. on Guglielmo Ferrero, the Italian historian, who on that day delivered his lecture on "Nero" at the university.

THE author of the verses on the German Emperor which caused not a little disturbance when recited by the late Admiral Coghlan, was the late Alexander McGregor Reese, and they first appeared in The Montreal Herald in October, 1897. The title was "Kaiser & Co.," with this sub-title, "Being Wilhelm der Grosse's estimate of himself (and partner), translated from the original Hoch-Deutsch."

L. FRANK BAUM, whose radio-play and fairylogue, entitled "The Land of Oz," has been delighting thousands of children in the larger cities during the fall months, has just closed a successful four weeks' engagement at the Hudson Theatre in New York City. Mr. Baum is now en route to California, where he will work on the dramatization of "Ozma of Oz," to be produced in the autumn by Montgomery and Stone, who won fame as the Scarecrow and Tin Woodman on the stage. Mr. Baum's manuscript for his new book for this year is in the hands of his publishers, The Reilly & Britton Co.

RECENT CUSTOMS DECISIONS.

WATERMARKED WRITING PAPERS.—The United States General Appraiser Fischer on December 23, 1908, in the case of W. Schade & Co., of St. Louis, protesting against the assessment of additional duty on watermarked writing paper by the surveyor of customs at the port of St. Louis, held that "a watermark in the form of a firm's name, business and address does not constitute a decoration, and writing paper so marked is not subject to the additional duty provided in paragraph 401, tariff act of 1897, 'writing . . . paper . . . decorated in any manner.'"

PRINTED PLATES.—In the matter of protest of Wells, Fargo & Co. against the assessment of duty by the collector of customs at the port of New York, the Board of United States General Appraisers on December 23, 1908, held that paragraph 502 of the Dingley law providing for "books" in foreign languages does not include an importation of 500 printed copies of an ancient French manuscript, in the form of twenty-four plates, where the form of a book is lacking in that all the copies of each plate are packed separately rather than assembled in proper order as a book. When the merchandise reached New York Collector Fowler exacted duty on the importation at the rate of 25 per cent. under the provision in the tariff for "printed matter." This classification was objected to by the importers, who set up the contention that the merchandise should be admitted free of duty as "books printed exclusively in a language other than English." General Appraiser Fischer, who writes the decision for the board, says that there is no doubt that the collector's assessment is correct. The importers' protest is accordingly overruled.

DELAY IN FILING OATH SUBJECTS BOOKS IMPORTED BY A LIBRARY TO DUTY.—The Board of United States General Appraisers ruled that an importation of books made by the Morrison-Reeves Free Public Library, of Richmond, Ind., must stand assessment of duty at the rate of 20 per cent. under the provision in the Dingley tariff law for "books." It was the contention of Ada L. Bernhardt, the librarian, that the books having been imported for the use of a public institution should be admitted free of duty. Judge Hay, who writes the decision for the board, says that the requirements for free entry were complied with. The requisite oath was not filed with the board until more than a year after the entry of the books, and according to the General Appraiser the delay is not in conformity with the regulations for the free entry of books.

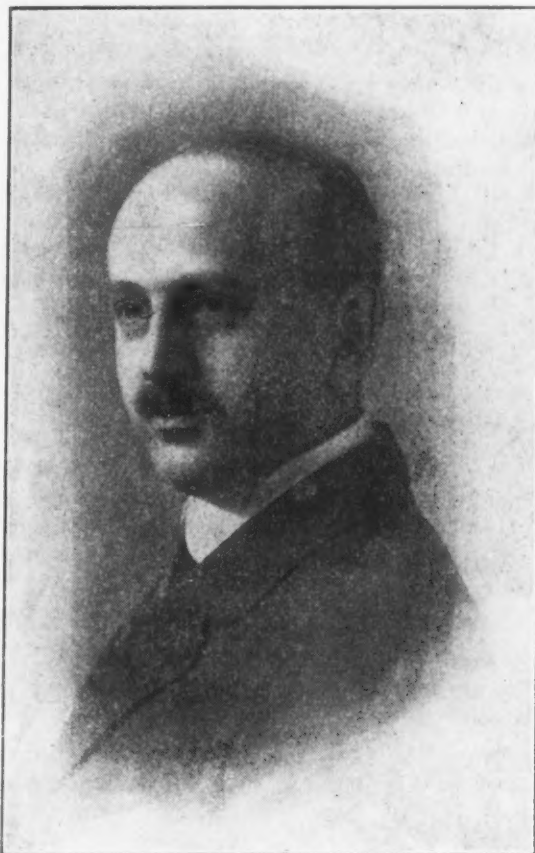

REDUCED POSTAGE TO GERMANY.

FROM January 1, the rate of postage on letters mailed in the United States for Germany and dispatched by sea direct and not via England or France is two cents an ounce or fraction of an ounce. When such letters are unpaid or short-paid the deficient postage is to be collected on delivery at double the two-cent rate.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE WISCONSIN FREE LIBRARY COMMISSION, Madison, Wis., has published a pamphlet entitled "The Negro Problem: a bibliography," by Vera Sieg. This bibliography is the first of a series upon American Social Questions prepared by the students of the Wisconsin Library School, class of 1908, and submitted by them in fulfillment of the requirements for graduation. The aim in publishing these bibliographies is to supply carefully-chosen reading references to up-to-date books and recent magazines bearing on urgent questions which are brought before the people, such as immigration, poverty, excessive wealth, etc. The present work deals with the question under two general divisions. The first division treats of The Negro Problem under the headings of General bibliography; Historical resumé—The Reconstruction period and recent distinctive developments in the problem; How many negroes are there now in America?; What is the negro's economic and industrial condition?; What are the negro's social and moral and religious conditions?; What is the political status of the negro?; and Crime among negroes and lynching. The second division treats of Proposed Lines of Solution under the following heads: General bibliography; Economic and industrial development; Education, Legislation and Moral and religious influence. (22 p. 16°.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE CENTURY COMPANY promise for next month a new story by Jeanette Lee, author of that excellent story "Uncle William."

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will bring out this month a novel by J. J. Bell, author of "Wee Macgregor," etc., entitled "Whither Thou Goest," dealing with Scottish life, especially as it is found along the banks of the Clyde.

PAUL B. HOEBER, 69 East Fifty-ninth Street, New York City, has purchased from the Rebman Company the entire edition of Senator and Kaminer's work on "Marriage and Disease," abridged from the larger work entitled "Health and Disease."

A NOVEL that was published in London the first of December last and met with instant success will be published here next week by Mitchell Kennerley. It is "The Bomb," by Frank Harris, and deals in a realistic manner with the "Haymarket" riots in Chicago.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just published "Modern Methods for Teachers," a twentieth century handbook for American teachers, normal schools and teachers' reading circles, by Professor Charles C. Boyer, of Keystone State Normal School, Kutztown, Pa.

REILLY & BRITTON are reprinting "Dorothy and the Wizard in Oz"—an unusual thing to do at this season of the year, when the demand for juvenile books is at its lowest. Nevertheless, the orders have come in so strong since the holidays that the new edition at this time is amply warranted.

EDWARD J. CLODE will publish this month a new novel by Gordon Holmes, author of "A Mysterious Appearance," etc., entitled "By Force of Circumstances," an engaging mystery story, with a charming love story added. He will bring out in February "The Message," a new story of romance and adventure, by Louis Tracy, with illustrations by Joseph C. Chase.

D. APPLETON & Co. announce a new novel by Mary E. Waller, author of "The Wood Carver of Lympus," entitled "A Year Out of Life." It is the story of a young American girl who goes to Germany for several years to study the German language, and is told in the form of letters that pass between the girl and a celebrated German author with whom she falls in love.

LUCY ELLIOTT KEELER, Fremont, Ohio, has just brought out her monograph on "The Old Fort Sandoski of 1745 and the Sandusky Country," an interesting contribution to local history, especially of the region extending from Fremont, (Lower Sandusky,) O., to Lake Erie. The pamphlet is illustrated with maps and engineer's sketches never before published and twenty-four portraits.

JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY will publish shortly an entertaining volume narrating the "Adventures of the World's Greatest Detectives," by George Barton, a well-known newspaper man of Philadelphia, and for several years secretary to the Collector of the Port of that city. Mr. Barton has drawn upon actual persons and occurrences for his material, and in the fifteen or more stories in his book introduces his readers to the best-known detectives of America, France, England and other countries. The volume will be fully illustrated by drawings and will be attractively embellished.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS will publish on the 10th inst. a work on "Industrial Insurance in the United States," by C. R. Henderson, who was recently appointed Secretary of the Illinois Industrial Insurance Commission by Governor Deneen. Mr. Henderson not only describes the systems of industrial insurance in use in Germany, Italy, Sweden, Denmark, Austria, Spain, Finland and Australia, but also explains the plans now used by American business firms, such as Swift & Co., Studebaker Bros., The International Harvester Co., Western Electric Co., Steinway & Sons and the Standard Oil Co.

DUFFIELD & Co. will publish on the 16th inst. H. G. Wells's new book, "Tono-Bungay," which is said to be a big, able-bodied, full-blooded English novel of the good old-fashioned school, but at the same time brim full of modernity, being the history of a patent medicine king, in other words, the inventor of Tono-Bungay. They expect to bring out on the 23d inst. "The Magician," a new novel by W. Somerset Maugham. The plot of the story turns upon the attempt of a modern wizard to produce human life, sacrificing the life of his own wife in the carrying out of his experiments.

PELOUBET'S "Select Notes on the International Sunday School Lessons," which this year made its thirty-fifth annual appearance, certainly is a remarkable volume, for the publishers, W. A. Wilde Company, announce the fact that the first edition has already been exhausted and that they have just gone to press with the largest supplementary edition which they have ever issued and much earlier than usual. Evidently the International Lessons have not lost any of their popularity, and Dr. Peloubet's Commentary upon the same is more strongly than ever introduced in the hearts of Sunday-school workers the world over.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. have in preparation for the spring a new novel by the English author and actor, Ridgwell Cullum, entitled "The Watchers of the Plains," which deals with ranch life on the prairies of North Dakota, where the author lived for some time and with the life of which he is thoroughly familiar. They have also under way a practical and helpful volume by the Rev. Dr. Floyd W. Tomkins, of the Church of the Holy Trinity in Philadelphia, designed to bring the teachings of the Christian religion into the everyday lives of ordinary men and women. The title of the book has not yet been definitely decided upon.

THE following advertisement appeared in a Boston newspaper on January 4: "The late Mr. J. McNeill Whistler's letters. Warning to publishers and others. It has come to the knowledge of the late Mr. Whistler's executrix that certain persons have recently published letters written by the late Mr. Whistler. Notice is hereby given that the publication of any such letters without the consent of Mr. Whistler's executrix is unlawful, and that legal proceedings will be taken against all persons publishing, or offering for sale, copies of any such letters. Watkins-Williams, Steel & Hart, solicitors for the said executrix, 54 New Broad Street, London, E. C., December, 1908."

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY will publish this month in a special edition of 1000 copies a handsome quarto volume entitled "The Ancestry of Abraham Lincoln," prepared by J. Henry Lea and J. R. Hutchinson, the English genealogist, who for some years have been at work tracing the ancestry of Lincoln back four generations earlier than any heretofore discovered. They have collected and reproduce in appendices a mass of wills, court records, and other documents, and tell the story of the family for ten generations, accompanying it with photogravure facsimiles of family papers, autographs and seals, and modern views and old prints of places and scenes connected with the family history.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just brought out a new book by Professor Grenville Kleiser, author of "How to Speak in Public," etc., entitled "How to Develop Power and Personality in Speaking." This new book gives practical suggestions and exercises on physical power, power of voice, how to build a vocabulary, power in English style, how to develop the imagination, dramatic power in speaking, etc. It also contains many selections for practice. They expect to publish this spring a new volume by Charles Wagner, the author of "The Simple Life." The forthcoming volume will deal with general topics related to the growth of the spiritual life, and will be entitled "The Home of the Soul."

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will bring out shortly a work on "The Acropolis of Athens," which gives the results of a number of years of study and of repeated visits to Athens, where, in 1886-7, the author, Martin L. D'Ooge, Professor of Greek in the University of Michigan, was Director of the American School of Classical Studies. The book is published as a companion volume to Professor Seymour's "Life in the Homeric Age." It is designed for readers who have a general interest in Greek history and Greek art, as well as for students and visitors at Athens who desire to use a handbook upon the spot. The seven chapters trace the history of the Acropolis from the time of the earliest occupation down to the present. The volume will be adequately illustrated.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. promise this month a novel of Russian life by Olive M. Briggs, entitled "The Black Cross;" "Lincoln's Birthday," by R. H. Schauffler, in the American Holiday Series; also, a volume by the late Rev. Dr. Henry A. Coit, rector of St. Paul's School, Concord, Mass., entitled "School Sermons." They will publish in February a volume entitled "The Romance of American Expansion," by H. Addington Bruce, author of "The Riddle of Personality" and "Historic Ghosts and Ghost Hunters." In his new book the author treats historically of the growth of the American republic from the primitive colonies along the Atlantic seaboard to the successive states whose rise finally brought the Pacific Coast line within the domain of the United States. The book finally deals with the tendencies to expansion shown in the present era.

E. STEIGER & Co., New York City, have brought out a pamphlet, printed as manuscript, entitled "Urheberrecht und Nachdruck in Nord Amerika: Plaudereien zur Berichtigung irriger Anschauungen," made up of the articles contributed to the Börsenblatt für den Deutschen Buchhandel from June 13 to September 24, 1908, by Ernst Steiger, on the subjects of copyright and the reprinting of uncopyrighted German literature in this country. Mr. Steiger's attitude is that the contention of German authors and publishers that American publishers are guilty of literary piracy in reprinting non-copyright material is unfounded, inasmuch as our copyright law does protect every foreign author in his work if he cares to comply with its provisions. The manufacturing clause he considers logical in a country that adheres to the protectionist policy.

OLIVER DITSON COMPANY have just brought out in their Musicians' Library a collection of the more important compositions of Chopin, entitled "The Greater Chopin," edited by James Huneker. The volume includes twenty-eight of the great Pole's works which the editor believes to represent him at his supremest. For that reason the volume is entitled "The Greater Chopin," not because the other Chopin is to be held in less esteem, but simply because the quality of music represented in this collection is of more pitch and weight than that included in a former volume, "Forty Piano Compositions of Frédéric Chopin," also edited by Mr. Huneker. The collection embraces two ballads, the second and fourth: two polonaises, four preludes, nine studies, three nocturnes, three scherzi, an impromptu, a presto finale, a barcarolle, a largo in B, from the sonata in B minor, and a fantasia in F minor. The volume contains also a critical introduction, a bibliography and a fine portrait of Chopin.

WILLIAM HENRY BAKER, P. O. Box 160, Cleveland, O., has just brought out his work entitled "A Dictionary of Men's Wear," which covers every branch of the apparel industry and many collateral lines from the raw product to the final retail sales. It also has side lights on the use and abuse of costume, trade slang, and much other matter pertinent, impertinent and curious, together with tables of sizes, measures and general information; tables of correct dress, livery, etc., descriptions of uniforms of "ancient and honorable" independent military organizations, college colors, etc. Although the title specifies "men's wear," the book broadly covers many items of women's wear, as many fabrics, etc., are common to both sexes, and, except that items of strictly women's wear and use have been omitted, might have been entitled "A Dictionary of Apparel," and is therefore of quite as much interest to the straight dry goods merchant as it is to the modern clothier and the student of customs and manners.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have three timely books on Lincoln, one being entitled "Abraham Lincoln—Tributes from his Associates," edited by Dr. William Hayes Ward. The volume is a portfolio containing the text and also a number of striking portraits showing Lincoln, the man, from many points of views by personal acquaintance. The other book is "Life of Lincoln for Boys," by Frances Campbell Sparhawk, which, while intensely interesting as a story, is strictly based on facts, tracing Lincoln's career from boyhood to the Presidential chair. The volume is fully illustrated. The third volume is Joseph H. Choate's address on Lincoln. They also call attention to the Virginia edition of "Poe's Complete Works," in seventeen handy volumes, which is based on the most complete and accurate text ever prepared, edited by Professor James A. Harrison, of the University of Virginia, with introduction by Hamilton W. Mabie and Charles W. Kent, and notes and variorum readings by R. A. Stewart. This set would make a most welcome gift to an admirer of Poe on the occasion of the centennial celebrations of his birth.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will bring out this month a work entitled "The Shores of the Adriatic—the Austrian Side, the Küstenlande, Istria and Dalmatia," by F. Hamilton Jackson, vice-president of the Institute of Decorative Designers, etc., which will be fully illustrated with plans and drawings by the author as well as photographs taken especially for the purpose. The volume is complementary to an earlier publication, which dealt with the Italian side of the Adriatic. It will contain much practical information for tourists, while, besides the human and art interest which distinguishes it, there is a good deal of attention devoted to archaeological subjects. They have also nearly ready "Fads and Feeding," by C. Stanford Read, who takes up in detail the whole subject of diet, and although he shows a decided leaning to vegetarianism he does not uphold any one system to the exclusion of the others, contenting himself instead with the theory that "food quantity is the main thing to be considered" in the preservation of health; also, a little book of essays by H. Belloc bearing the title "On Nothing, and Kindred Subjects," dealing with such subjects as Getting Respected in Inns and Hotels, Ignorance, On a Dog and a Man, Tea, Them, Railways and Things, etc.
